African Literature In French A History Of Creative Writing In French From West And Equatorial Africa

african literature and the environment: a study in ... - african literature and the environment: a study in postcolonial ecocriticism, examines how african literary texts document, critique, and offer alternative visions on ecological crises such as the niger-delta oil pollution and the dumping of toxic wastes in african waters. the study challenges the anthropocentrism dominating african ... motherhood in african literature and culture - purdue e-pubs - abstract: in her article "motherhood in african literature and culture" remi akujobi analyzes the place and the role of women in african religion and tradition and also interrogates the place of motherhood in the production, circulation and consumption of items in african tradition. akujobi examines a history of twentieth century african literature - for example, literature in english is the subject of five chapters, and french the subject of three, while literature in portuguese is confined to a single chapter. the paradoxical primacy of european languages in african literatures necessitates another anomaly—the inclusion of a separate chapter on literature in african languages. african literature and cultural imperialism - le cames - african literature today are a dangerous death-grip from which it must be released. it is a manifestation of a cultural imperialism, to try to constrain the developments of african literature by demanding strict and exclusive adherence to the characteristics of western strains. african literature, visual arts & film in local and ... - african literature, visual arts & film in local and transnational spaces 37th annual ala conference april 13-17, 2011 hosted by ohio university department of english and african studies program modern african literature and cultural identity - african literature written in these european languages as an extension of european literature. however, after modern imperialism, language alone cannot be the sole definer of a people's literature. defining african literature, abiola irele writes: the term 'africa' appears to correspond to a geographical notion contemporary african literature: new approaches - african literature possessing those qualities that define it as such. that is why i trace response to oral poetic performances as of the udje and ijala and the continuation into modern works in english, french, or portuguese, among others. modern african literature is the natural inheritor of traditional african literature and though unbending gender narratives in african literature - african literature is replete with write-ups that project male dominance and inadequately pleads the case of the african woman. it becomes imperative to trace the genesis of gender inequality in african literature. as kolawole (1997) notes, by omission or commission, most male writers in the early phase of african literature encouraged the
